Everyone Welcome!

4 miles north of Suttons Bay

(North on M22, turn left at Stallman, follow sign to pow-wow grounds)

See demonstrations of the art of making arrowheads and other stone tools.

“Flintknapping” is the word used to describe the process of making stone tools from flint, chert, obsidian, and even man-made glass.

The Michigan Flintknappers is a group of individuals dedicated to the art, tradition, and education of making stone tools (arrowheads, spearheads, scrapers, etc.) the way the Anishnaabek did for thousands of years.....

See demonstrations from some of the best Flintknappers in Michigan! Some items for sale.
